7. Finding and getting money

7.4.15 Funding for International Projects

Overview

This information sheet provides details of sources of funding for voluntary organisations that are involved with international projects, community links and exchanges with the 'global south' and Africa in particular. This sheet is intended as a general guide; contacts given will be able to provide you with more detailed information. Your local county voluntary council (CVC) can also help you to identify sources of funding for your needs.

Fit for Funding

Almost without exception, most funders and donors will expect you to be properly set up organisationally, with an approved constitution, bank account and trustees, charity registration and, for most international projects, a partnership agreement detailing clear decision-making, accountability, roles and responsibilities between the partners in Wales and the South.

For international activities, the Charity Commission may require you to demonstrate that appropriate measures are in place to ensure funds do not contribute to money laundering, corruption or terrorism; and in particular for projects involving young people, that appropriate child protection policies are in place. You can get support and advice on these issues from your local CVC or from Wales Africa Community Links www.walesafrica.org

Attracting the Right Funding

Funding streams can be diverse, ranging from statutory schemes to trusts and foundations with a specific interest in international development. Before making applications, careful consideration must be given to which sources offer the best fit with your - and your southern partners' - aims and objectives.

You should think carefully about time, effort and accountability expectations of different funders, and your capacity to manage these. Applications to large funders, such as DfID or the EU, often require:

- many hundreds of hours of detailed project planning and application writing (to funding pots which are massively oversubscribed);

- professional project management to the funders (not your) requirements, over the lifetime of the project;
- legally binding financial and reporting accountability, for which your organization will be primarily liable (you will usually carry liability for checking overseas partners);
- funds are usually restricted, so cannot be spent on anything other than the purpose originally applied for.

You may be able to raise more (and less restricted) funds, and engage more people, by channeling the same time and effort into community fundraising!

Who Where What When?

- Who are the people who will benefit from your project? Who are you as an organisation – and who will be involved in making things happen?
- Where is the place that your project will be delivered?
- What is the problem that your project will work towards resolving / changing - and how?
- When will your progress be seen – and how will you evaluate your project's effectiveness?

Your 'Funding Mix'

For your projects to be sustainable, you should avoid reliance on just one form of income. Your balance of funding sources might come from:

- Individuals and Community
- Business or Company Sponsorship
- Trading
- Statutory / Government Funds
- Big Lottery & Comic Relief
- Charitable Trusts & Foundations

Individuals and Community Support

Generating support from individuals, organisations and institutions in your local area can be a highly effective and sustainable source of 'unrestricted' funds, that can be put to most effective use as decided by your charity and your southern partners, rather than by requirements of external funders.

For example, while a £2500 one-off grant application might take 2 days to write, in the same time you may be able to 'leaflet drop' and recruit 50 people to donate £5 a month – raising £3,000 a year, ongoing! It can also build your organisation's profile and supporter base.

Sustainable Funding Cymru Guides:

www.sustainablefundingcymru.org.uk/fundingportal/funding-sources/giving-and-public-fundraising

Individual Donations

Appealing for individual, one off donations for international projects is often most effective for appeals, such as a) emergency / disaster responses or b) one off initiatives like building a classroom. More substantial donations include legacies - money and items left in wills to charity.

Fundraising Events and Activities

Most effective as a 'mobilisation tool' for engaging people in social and creative ways with your international projects. From raffles to sponsored cycle rides, such events can take a great deal of work but may generate strong 'supporter loyalty' - which might usefully be channelled into future regular giving.

Regular Giving

Often the most valuable and sustainable income source for small organisations, especially for covering a) core costs, b) projects responding to diverse need, or c) led by southern partners. Donors usually expect some form of communication, such as a newsletter, to keep them informed of how their donations are being used. Regular methods may include:

- Subscription - regular membership fee / payment.
- Direct Debit - monthly gift direct from a donor's bank account.
- Payroll Giving - A workplace giving scheme whereby employees sign up to donate to a selected charity from their pay packet. The donation is deducted at source by the employer and sent directly to their nominated charity.

REMEMBER – ask donors to GIFT AID!

www.hmrc.gov.uk/individuals/giving/gift-aid.htm

Gift Aid allows charities to reclaim the basic rate of tax (28.2%) on donations given to charity by UK tax paying donors, with their permission.

Business and Corporate Giving

www.sustainablefundingcymru.org.uk/fundingportal/funding-sources/giving-and-public-fundraising/company-giving

Think first about local businesses and companies in your community who might support / sponsor your international work. Companies will often want to do this for positive publicity and “brand association” – which can be a ‘win-win’ for your project, as long as this doesn’t pose ethical conflicts (for example, doing peace work with funds from an arms manufacturer).

Beyond funding, companies may be an excellent source of skills & expertise, goods, or ‘gifts in kind’.

Approach companies who specialise (in the UK) in services you are looking to deliver (with your southern project partners) – for example:

- BT British Telecom – for communications projects and / or equipment
- Dwr Cymru – for water projects
- CISCO – for IT projects

Social Enterprise Schemes

www.unltd.org.uk

The charity supports social entrepreneurs who want to change the world for the better. Two levels of grants are available; Level One £500 - £5,000 and Level Two £10 – 20,000.

Trading

www.sustainablefundingcymru.org.uk/earning/trading

Some international projects – particularly those addressing issues around livelihoods – may be able to raise income for projects through sales of goods (such as fair or ethically traded crafts) to UK buyers.

Charity shops receive and sell on donated goods to turn them into cash towards international projects. Shops however carry substantial overheads and are rarely economic for small charities.
