

Wales Council for Voluntary Action

Supporting charities, volunteers and communities

7. Finding and getting money

7.4.3 Trusts and foundations

Overview

The following list gives details of trusts which make grants to voluntary organisations (not normally to individuals), and which are based in Wales, have a particular connection with Wales or specify Wales or parts of Wales in the area where they distribute grants. They represent a small proportion of the many hundreds of charitable trusts in the UK, including major grant makers. Your local county voluntary council can help to identify other trusts that might meet your needs.

The information in this section is based on those replies. Where no replies were received the latest published information has been used. The entries in this listing are intended as a general guide – you should always contact the appropriate trust for more detailed information or, visit their website.

The Isle of Anglesey Charitable Trust

The Trust was founded in 1990 to manage funds received from Shell (UK) when it ceased to operate an oil terminal in Anglesey. It aims to provide amenities and facilities to benefit local residents.

Funding is provided under the following headings:

- Churches & Chapels (minor works)
- Community Facilities (village halls, play areas etc)
- Smaller Community Grants (mainly social services)

Priorities - voluntary organisations based in Anglesey.

Applications - the trust invites applications annually, which should be made in writing.

The Brecon Beacons Trust

The Brecon Beacons Trust is a charitable company established to help people, communities and voluntary organisations achieve positive environmental conservation and enhancement within the Brecon Beacons National Park. The Trust was established in 2009 with initial funding from the National Grid.

The Trust supports:

- Environmental conservation, protection and improvement of the Park for the benefit of the public.

- Greater educational awareness and knowledge of the conservation, protection and improvement of the Park's physical, natural and archaeological environment.

The Trustees believe that a resilient, healthy and diverse environment is the essential foundation on which a thriving society and economy are built. They subscribe to the principles of sustainable development while recognising that we are all still exploring what sustainability means in practice at all levels of society.

The Brecon Beacons Trust sees its role as enabling local communities and voluntary organisations, living and operating within the area of the Brecon Beacons National Park, to positively conserve and enhance their local environments so as to contribute to the overall quality of life for people who live, work in or visit the Park.

In achieving its own objectives the Trust wishes to contribute to the purposes for which National Parks were established:

- To conserve and enhance the natural beauty, wildlife and cultural heritage of the National Parks.
- To promote opportunities for the understanding and enjoyment of the special qualities of the Parks by the public
- To help foster the economic and social well being of the communities within their areas.

Coalfields Regeneration Trust

Aims

The Coalfields Regeneration Trust's mission is 'to promote and achieve the social and economic regeneration of the Coalfields of England, Wales and Scotland'.

Priorities

The Trust has specified that it will support projects that fit into one or more of the following funding themes:

- Supporting communities includes both capital and revenue elements that creates or improves community facilities; improves access to services including health, debt and welfare rights advice, and supports the involvement of local people.
- Learning communities includes activities for people of all ages on accredited and non-accredited courses providing they are additional to statutory provision. It includes early years, out of school activity and summer camps, youth work activity, mentoring and volunteering schemes.
- Enterprising communities is to support the development of social enterprise and voluntary groups to generate income, it includes start up costs, developing buildings and equipment to improve sustainability, business training and schemes that focus on sharing resources and contracting.
- Supporting people in to work aims to build on existing employment schemes by supporting new and locally designed approaches that get people into work. These include projects that improve job prospects through wage subsidy, vocational skills and tailor made training schemes; schemes that target hard to reach people; activity centred around growth industries providing training and job guarantee schemes; and labour market programmes.

Eligibility

Grants are made to charities, voluntary organisations, local authorities, agencies and partnerships. Community groups and small organisations are eligible if they:

- Have an appropriate constitution;
- Have a bank account with cheques signed by at least two people;
- Submit a well planned and costed application which will make a positive contribution to coalfield regeneration.

Applicants must be financially sound, and should not have reserves which are greater than 12 months running costs or more than four times the value of the sum applied for.

Applications

Guidelines and application forms are available from the Trust's Pontypridd office. Applicants are invited to discuss their proposals with the Regeneration Manager. The Trust emphasises the need for comprehensive planning for projects. There are separate application arrangements for:

- Bridging the Gap (small grant) (£500 to £10,000) – requiring constitutions, recent accounts, an independent referee, and a project description;
- Main Grant (£10,000 to £100,000) – requiring more detailed information;

Area covered

Existing and former coalfield areas and, exceptionally, projects outside these areas which will benefit a coalfield area. Detailed information is available from the CRT office.

The Waterloo Foundation

The funding priorities for the Wales Fund are:

Working Wales

The Foundation is keen to support and assist in the development of an enterprise culture in Wales and so would welcome applications from organisations and projects that will facilitate people becoming employed, whether working for others or for themselves. The Foundation will also look favourably on applications that address 'barriers to work' and will be equally receptive to both 'tried and tested' methods and those projects which are more innovative.

Caring Wales

It is estimated that 1 in 10 people in Wales is providing unpaid care for a family member, a total of some 300,000 people. Of these, 7,000 are predicted to be children aged 5 – 15 (source National Office of Statistics). The Foundation believes that these adults and children, who have to live and work in this way, deserve our help.

To this end, they would like to receive applications from organisations and projects providing:

- Advocacy programmes for Carers.
- Training and Support for Carers.
- Respite Care

They make grants for all types of projects; start-up, initial stages and valuable ongoing funding. This can include running costs and overheads as well as posts; particularly under the World Development and Projects in Wales. They do not have any upper or lower limit on the amount of grant they offer but it is unlikely that they would offer a grant of more than £100,000.

The Welsh Church Acts Funds

The Welsh Church Funds are charitable trusts administered by the local authorities or County Voluntary Councils, applying funds released by the disestablishment of the Church in Wales.

Aims: All the Welsh Church Acts Funds can serve the following purposes:

- Education – the provision of benefits not readily available from other sources;
- relief of sickness and need;
- libraries, museums, art galleries, etc;
- social and recreational facilities;
- aesthetic, architectural, historic and scientific matters;
- medical and social research and treatment;
- probation schemes;
- blind or elderly people;
- places of worship and burial grounds;
- emergencies or disasters, other charitable purposes.

Grants and applications: Each local authority or County Voluntary Council will have its own criteria and application procedure, and their priorities will differ. Many have a maximum grant level and this can be as little as £250 in authorities where the reallocation of the Welsh Church Acts Funds has meant that they will only have a few thousand pounds to distribute. Contact the relevant local authorities for further information, details and application forms.
